WEST LOOP

Jameson | Sotheby's
INTERNATIONAL REALTY

Union Station | Architect: Daniel Burnham | Style: Beaux-Arts | Opened: 1925

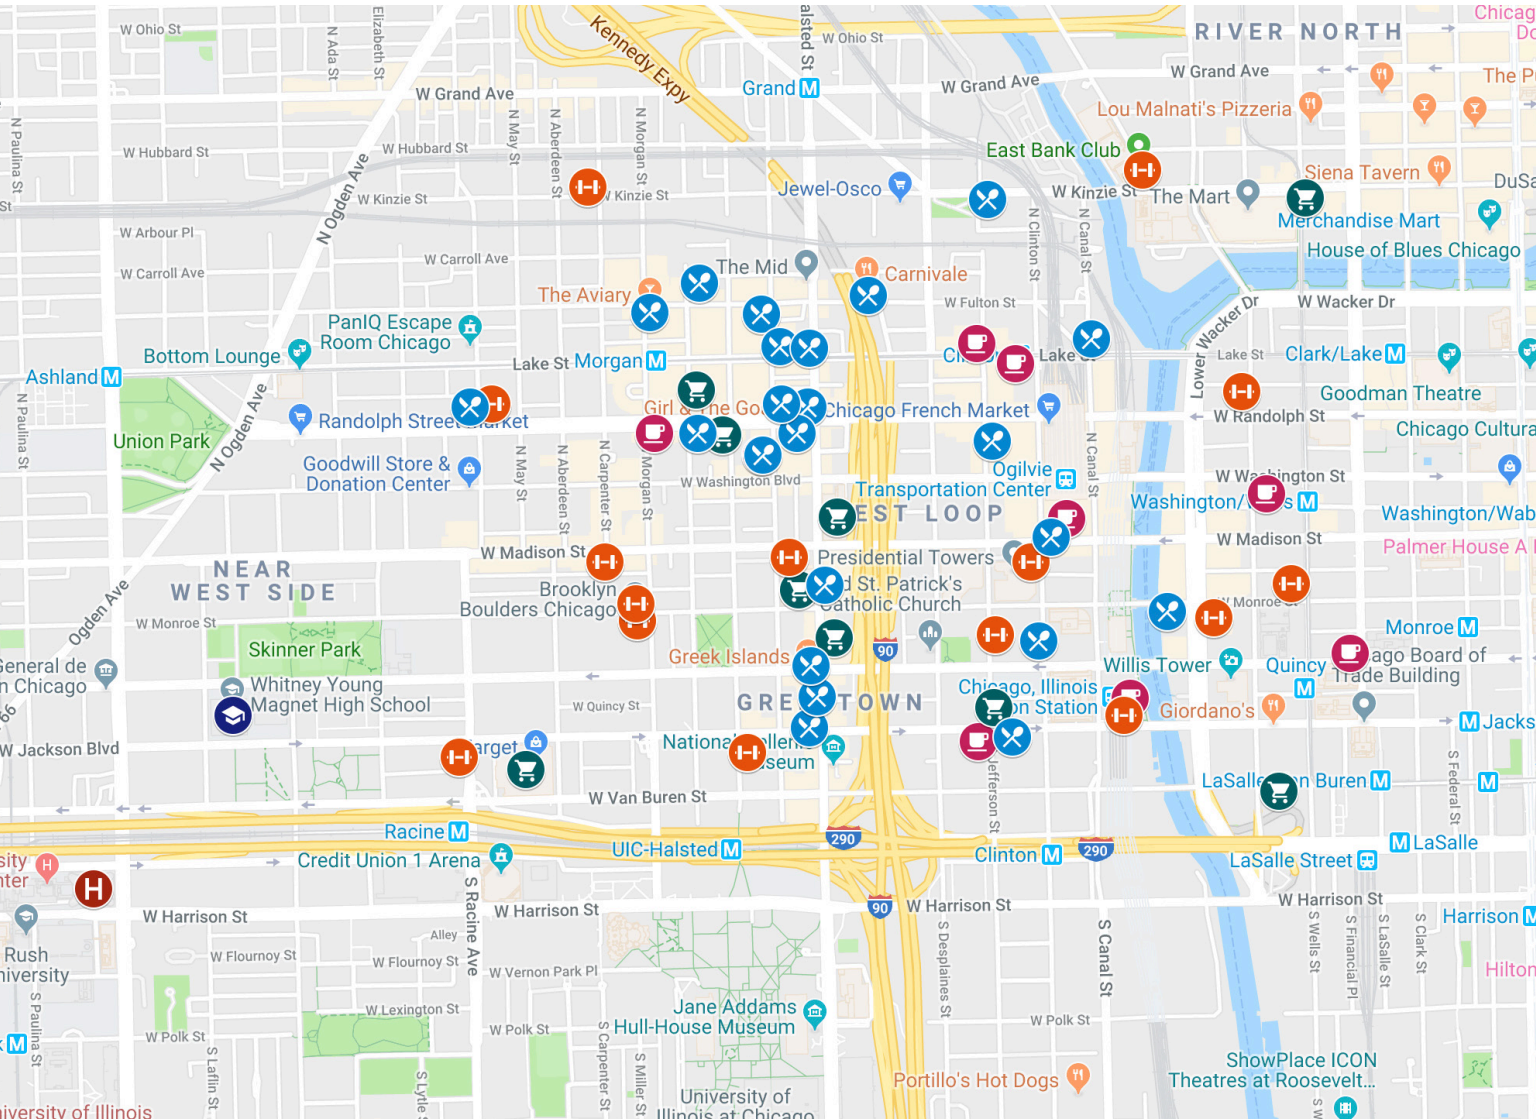

Union Station was hailed as an outstanding achievement in railroad facility planning. The station's ornate main waiting room, the "Great Hall", was constructed with a 219-foot-long barrel-vaulted skylight that soars 115 feet over the room. The skylight ceiling was blacked-out during World War II in order to make the station less of a target for enemy aircraft.

WEST LOOP

The West Loop is a fast-growing area in the midst of a new real estate development boom, attracting a populace of urbanites who appreciate its many new multi-unit buildings and complexes and its proximity to downtown. In addition to new construction, the neighborhood features numerous rehabbed loft buildings converted into condos and commercial spaces. Amenities include world-class restaurants, clubs and a burgeoning gallery scene. The area is also home to Harpo Studios, where the Oprah Winfrey Show is produced, and the United Center with its famous statue of Michael Jordan, and home of the Chicago Bulls and Blackhawks.
